- Penn State College of Medicine is launching the second HPV Vaccine Communication ECHO series. All pediatricians and family care clinics across PA are invited to participate in this FREE training program. This 8-session virtual training program focuses on evidence-based communication practices to improve HPV vaccine uptake among adolescents (the training will also cover other adolescent vaccines). The training will begin in early August and continue through early November, meeting via Zoom for one hour every other week. Enrolled clinics will be invited to register up to 6 staff (clinicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, PAs, etc.) who may be interested in participating and are involved in vaccine administration and/or communication with parents. This link is to be filled out by a representative from your clinic site that is interested in participating: <https://bit.ly/HPVECHO>
